

PEPTIDE COMPANY COULD ENHANCE YOUR PORTFOLIO

JOHN BEVERIDGE

CLOUD-based software can be a really disruptive technology, which may become obvious as Dubber lists on the ASX today.

Based around the well known phone call recording for “quality and training purposes”, Dubber greatly expands the usefulness and access of recordings at a cheaper price.

Chief executive Steve McGovern said the technology can be used by a single person business all the way up to large corporations like banks and brokers which may need to record calls for regulatory and legal reasons.

Unlike conventional recordings, these are available immediately and can automatically screen out credit card numbers and be a useful marketing tool.

For example, if you mention home loan in a call to your bank, a loan offer could land in your email inbox within hours.

It’s a brave new world and Dubber is one to keep on the watchlist.

The Herald Sun accepts no responsibility for stock recommendations. Readers should contact a licensed financial adviser.