

Labor's 50% electric car goal: too ambitious or not ambitious enough?

Presented by Patricia Karvelas

Download audio

Tuesday 9 April 2019 6:43PM (view full episode)

IMAGE: WIEBE WAKKER ARRIVES IN SYDNEY AFTER DRIVING FROM AMSTERDAM IN AN ELECTRIC CAR (TWITTER: @WIEBEWKKR) LINK TO LARGER IMAGE.

Labor's goal to make 50 per cent of new cars electric by 2030 has been labelled too ambitious and unrealistic, when they only make up 0.2 per cent of the Australian market right now.

But the Dutchman who drove from Amsterdam to Sydney in an electric car, reckons it's not ambitious enough.

Wiebe Wakker rolled into the Harbour City on Sunday, after his record-breaking three-year journey through 33 countries.

Guest:

Wiebe Wakker, Plug Me In

<https://www.abc.net.au/radionational/programs/drive/wiebe-wakker-arrives-in-sydney-after-driving-from-amsterdam-in/10986360>